Apeks

Apeks has been bought by Aqualung in 1997.

- A lot of Apeks regulators use the main basic design, hence their confusing naming scheme. Regulators get new names by the simple addition of a heat-exchanger, a different purge cover, etc.
- The following models use the same body or just have slight cosmetical differences:AT20, ATX40.
- The following models use the same body or just have slight cosmetical differences: ATX100, ATX200, ATX Tungsten, ATX Black Pearl.
- The following models use the same body or just have slight cosmetical differences: XTX20 & XTX40.

Aqualung

Aqualung started out as La Spirotechnique and is an Umbrella corporation for the following companies:

- In 1956 it acquired U.S. Divers
- In 1979 it acquired TechniSub.
- In 1990 it acquired SeaQuest.
- In 1992 it acquired Deep See.
- In 1997 it acquired Apeks.

In 1998 it unified most of the above trademarks under the Aqualung name.

A lot of Aqualung regulators use the main basic design, hence their confusing naming scheme. Regulators get new names by the simple addition of a heat-exchanger, a different purge cover, etc.
